

FRANKENSTEIN

WHAT HAPPENED AFTER THE STORY FINISHED

2C – 2A – APRIL 2020

While the creature was building the bonfire, he put his foot on a very thin piece of ice, fell into the icy water, tried to get out, but it was too late: the cold had taken over his body, which fell slowly to the bottom of the icy sea.

About three hundred years later a team of scientists went there to shoot a documentary about penguins. Suddenly, a man saw something grey on the bottom of the sea, and immediately called his colleagues to show it to them.

When the scientists noticed that "that thing" was moving, they got scared; but a man, Frederick Frankenstein, decided to pull it up.

They had a machine used to save the penguins that fell into the water, and they managed bring the creature up.

At first, what everyone saw was a man, if you can call it that way, who moved strangely, without speaking.

But then suddenly the creature got up, grabbed one of the scientists by the neck and threw him five meters away. Everyone ran away screaming.

Frederick, instead, stood still, terrified of the monster, walking towards him as if to kill him, with a murderous look in his eyes... Which strangely changed when he saw Frederick's face. It was the same as his creator's.

In fact, there was a great resemblance between Frederick and Victor. The monster walked towards Frederick, stopped and asked him:

"Is your name Victor Frankenstein?"

Frederick said no, but he said he was a very distant relative of his. In fact, he was his great-great-grandson.

Many thoughts were going through the monster's mind: he is related to my creator, he abandoned me, but I am sorry for what I did while he was alive.

So, the monster decided not to attack him, and tried to apologize to Frederick for everything he had done during his life. Frederick said he would only forgive him if he helped him realize his dream: to become a scientist like his great-great-grandfather and create another monster, a female monster.

The monster agreed, so he went to London with Frederick. The monster thus managed to live happily with his monster wife and children. They had children, and their children had sons and daughters as well....

Finally, a world where zombies and men living peacefully together began.

Michele II C

On a cold northern island, the monster was thinking: "Yes, I was going to make a big fire because I wanted to finish my sad life in it, but I changed my mind, because if I do it, future monsters cannot have a guide, and I want to have a family, so..."

The monster suddenly changed direction. He went back to Robert Walton's ship, because he wanted his help to build a monster girl. In fact, he couldn't do that by himself.

He found Walton and told him: "I want your help, come with me or I'll kill you".

Together they arrived in Scotland, where Victor had his laboratory. There, they found the remains of the woman monster that Victor was making before he broke his promise.

Robert said to the monster: "How can I help you? I don't know how to build a monster, I can't help you!"

"Yes, you can, I know how to read but I'm not good at it, you must read me the instructions that are written on his journal, on Victor's journal. Oh, I don't understand why he destroyed my future wife, we had an agreement" said the monster sadly.

"I can help you" said Robert, "But you must promise me a thing, if I help you, you must not kill anybody anymore"

"I promise" said the monster "Now we must find something to eat and then we will go to bed. Tomorrow, when we wake up, we will start our work".

They ate some of the snacks they found in Victor's drawer and they went to bed, Robert slept on Victor's bed, while the monster slept on the ground.

Before he fell asleep, Robert thought: "I'm a little scared of staying here alone with a monster, but I think he could be a good friend and I'm happy that he is doing this to have someone to love and start a family with..." and he fell asleep.

The next morning, they began working.

They used the parts that laid on the floor and the tools that they found in a drawer.

The monster was a good worker, but sometimes it was difficult for him to work because of his huge hands. But Robert helped the creature.

They worked hard and in a few days the body was ready. While they were working, Robert and the monster became friends.

On 21st November 1815, they gave life to the woman monster. She was a beautiful monster and she immediately fell in love with the monster, who took the name of Frankenstein (in memory of his creator).

Thea (the woman monster) immediately became friends with Robert too.

Robert was alone, so Frankenstein and Thea told him to go with them and travel all over the world.

Robert accepted, and they all lived happily ever after.

When Walton came back from the Arctic, he went to Frankenstein's house, because he wanted to talk to Ernest about Victor's death.

Before Walton left his house, he found Victor's journal and he took it.

After a few days, Walton started reading the journal and became interested in what Victor did.

He did some experiments, and then he decided to bring Victor and his family back to life.

Before Walton could come back to the Arctic, the monster created an army made by terrible monsters... He didn't actually want to die in a fire.

The following year, the creature's army marched to Ingolstadt and set all houses on fire. The university, the church and the others buildings got destroyed as well.

When Walton got the news about Ingolstadt, he woke Victor and his family up.

They looked for the monster's army, and when they found him in Evian, they started to fight.

During the battle, Victor finally met the Monster.

He attacked him, but the Monster was stronger. He was almost dying, when Alphonse arrived and killed the Monster.

Luckily, when the enemies realized that their leader died, they surrendered.